DOUG BURGE

CTBA PRESIDENT

Moving Forward in Uncertain Times

At the time of writing this editorial, we are facing uncertainty with the COVID-19 virus and the effects on racing in the near future. But we are moving forward in the hopes that our planned racing events continue.

The CTBA has made a commitment the past few years not only to encourage more California-bred restricted racing opportunities in Northern California, but also to supplement those races financially through the California-bred Race Fund. I am very pleased to report that in 2018 and 2019 many new Cal-bred restricted maiden races were offered and were well supported by the horsemen. With the focus in the north being primarily on open races (due to the overall horse inventory), which includes the added 30% bonus to California-breds, these supplements in restricted races provide a total purse equal to or greater than the open races, with the benefit of the fields being limited to strictly Cal-breds.

Once again we are pleased to announce and co-sponsor the fifth consecutive Cal-bred Turf Extravaganza, to be held Sunday, April 26, at Golden Gate Fields. At this time, plans for the event include the $100,000 Silky Sullivan and $100,000 Campanile for 3-year-olds and 3-year-old fillies, respectively. Other restricted opportunities will be discussed and determined later.

As the Cal-bred Turf Extravaganza is now an annual fixture on the calendar, we would like to acknowledge and thank both Golden Gate Fields and the Thoroughbred Owners of California for their ongoing support. A complete listing of

VASSAR PHOTOGRAPHY

Plans are in place for the April 26 Cal-bred Turf Extravaganza at Golden Gate Fields

Also, in regard to Northern California racing during the fair meets, we will again offer two Golden State Series races later this year. They include the $100,000 Evrett Nevin Stakes at Pleasanton and the $100,000 Harris Farms Stakes at Fresno. The CTBA Racing Committee continues to look at innovative ways to provide more opportunities for owners/breeders in both the north and the south. CTB

WARREN'S SHOWTIME WINS CHINA DOLL

On a major day of racing that featured John Sadler's third consecutive Santa Anita Handicap (G1), Warren's Showtime demonstrated the talent of California-breds. Three races prior to Combatant's triumph in the Big 'Cap, the classy filly scored in the $106,000 China Doll Stakes March 7.

Warren's Showtime

Jorge Velez piloted Warren's Showtime in the listed stakes at a mile on the turf. Favored at 3-1 and breaking from post 11, Warren's Showtime sat in midpack early. She found room on the rail, battling through with courage to get up and defeat second-choice Stella Star by a half-length in 1:36.24.

Benjamin Warren bred Warren's Showtime, a daughter of Clubhouse Ride—Warren's Veneda, by Affirmative, and owns her with his wife, Sally. Craig Lewis, who trained both the sire and dam, also conditions Warren's Showtime.

"We were very concerned about the 11 hole with a mile and a 13-horse field," said Lewis. "But Jorge did a fantastic job in the clubhouse turn and then came through a very narrow hole. He's very brave and so is the filly."

Warren's Showtime previously won the $202,000 California Cup Oaks Jan. 18 and the $100,351 Surfer Girl Stakes Oct. 6. Her record stands at four wins in seven starts with two thirds for total earnings of $301,251.

Cal-bred Sells for $170,000

A California-bred son of Run Away and Hide sold for $170,000 at the March 17 session of the Ocala Breeders' Sales' 2-year-old in training auction. Hideyuki Mori purchased the colt from the consignment of Andy Havens' Havens Bloodstock Agency as agent.

Jack and Barbara Owens bred the colt, named Chiran, who is out of the Officer mare Officer Allie. Chiran previewed an eighth of a mile in :09.4.

Run Away and Hide now stands in Turkey and previously stood in Kentucky. The son of City Zip won all three of his starts, including the 2008 Saratoga Special Stakes (G2). Officer Allie won two of 10 starts, with two seconds and one third.

LUIS QUINONES SELECTED FOR WOOLF AWARD

Luis Quinones, the second-leading rider by races won nationally in 2019, was selected as the 2020 George Woolf Award winner. A nationwide vote of his peers selected Quinones for the award, given by Santa Anita annually since 1950.

A regular rider at Thistledown in Ohio and Mountaineer Park in West Virginia, 41-year-old Quinones out-pollled other finalists who included Tyler Baze, Javier Castellano, Chris Emigh, and James Graham. He won 314 races from 1,331 mounts in 2019 and has ridden nearly 2,000 winners throughout his career.

"It's a great honor just to be on the ballot for this award," said Quinones. "Winning the Woolf Award is incredible."

The Woolf Award, which can be won only once, recognizes those riders whose careers and personal character garner esteem for the individual and the sport of Thoroughbred racing. It is named for the popular Hall of Fame rider George Woolf, who died in 1946. Woolf's life-sized statue is in Santa Anita's paddock gardens, and the Woolf trophy is a small replica of that statue.

Harris Farms Welcomes Its First Conquest Farenheit Foal

Miss Sea Cup and her Conquest Farenheit colt

A colt out of Miss Sea Cup is Harris Farms' first foal for California stallion Conquest Farenheit. The youngster, owned by Rockingham Ranch, was foaled Feb. 14 at John Harris' farm in Coalinga. The mare is an allowance-winning daughter of Sea of Secrets.

Conquest Farenheit stands at Harris for $3,000. He won the 2017 Pasadena Stakes and Baffle Stakes at Santa Anita and finished second in the 2016 Summer Stakes (G2T) at Woodbine. A son of Scat Daddy—Holy Smokie, by Holy Bull, Conquest Farenheit earned $187,655. Rockingham Ranch purchased him for $735,000 at the 2016 Keeneland November sale.

CORONAVIRUS AND ANIMALS

As the world deals with the difficulties of the coronavirus and COVID-19, California veterinarian Dr. Bob Harman, CEO of VetStem, sent out an advisory on his website blog at vetstem.com regarding the possible transmission of the virus from humans to animals and vice versa.

GETTY IMAGES

"Though this continues to be a rapidly developing situation, the CDC (Center for Disease Control) is currently reporting that they have not received any reports of pets sick with COVID-19," wrote Harman in his blog. "They also stated, 'In the United States there is no evidence to suggest that any animals, including pets, livestock, or wildlife, might be a source of COVID-19 infection at this time.' The CDC recommends if you are not ill with COVID-19, you can interact with your pet as you normally would. However, you can practice good hygiene during your interactions (wash hands before and after interacting)."

Harman also listed the CDC's recommendations on pet interaction for someone sick with COVID-19, writing that "you should restrict contact with pets and other animals, just like you would around other people." He added that there had not been reports of pets or other animals becoming sick with COVID-19.

For further information, see Harman's blog at his website (blog.vetstem.com).

Ashleyluvssugar Retired

California-bred millionaire Ashleyluvssugar has been retired from racing. Trainer Peter Eurton tweeted the news March 22, noting that the gelding would join fellow Cal-bred stakes winner Bettys Bambino in North Carolina.

One of the most consistent and hard-knocking Cal-breeds in recent years, Ashleyluvssugar raced for the partnership of Sharon Alesia, Mike Mellen's Bran Jam Stable, and Joe Ciaglia's Ciaglia Racing. Mellen and Ciaglia bred the gelding with Alesia's late husband, Frank. Ashleyluvssugar is a 9-year-old son of Game Plan—Ashley's Folly, by Urgent Request.

"I'll miss his enormous personality—playful still at 9, his tenacity, and the way he looks at you with those big eyes," Eurton said in his tweet. "He can't be replaced."

Ashleyluvssugar became a fixture at the Eurton barn. He had his own way of requesting treats, especially carrots or Mrs. Pastures horse cookies. Dawn Mellen, Mike's daughter, often played a game with Ashleyluvssugar. She would hold a carrot in one hand and a cookie in the other to make him choose.

Having begun his racing career in 2013, Ashleyluvssugar won 10 of 38 races, with six seconds and six thirds. He earned a total of $1,488,083. His six stakes victories include two wins in the Charles Whittingham Stakes (G2T), as well as the 2017 California Cup Turf Classic Stakes presented by City National Bank, 2016 John Henry Turf Championship Stakes (G2T) and Del Mar Handicap Presented by The Japan Racing Association (G2T), and the 2015 San Luis Rey Stakes (G2T).

Dawn, who runs After the Finish Line, a funding non-profit for Thoroughbred racehorses in second careers, is sure that Ashleyluvssugar will enjoy his new life.

"He has the brain, attitude, desire, and competitiveness that you want to give him the chance to see what he would like in a second career," she said.

Evening Jewel

ANNE M. EBERHARDT

10 YEARS AGO

Keeneland has become a good source of graded stakes for California-breeds, as EVENING JEWEL proved April 3, 2010. The filly shipped to Kentucky and captured the \$400,000 Central Bank Ashland Stakes (G1). With jockey Kent Desormeaux aboard for trainer Jim Cassidy, Evening Jewel scored by a neck over It's Tea Time, with favored She Be Wild third. Evening Jewel completed 1 $\frac{1}{16}$ miles on synthetic in 1:43.54. "We thought she would love the Polytrack at Keeneland," said Tom Braly, who with his wife, Marilyn, owned Evening Jewel in the name of the Braly Family Trust. Betty Mabee and Larry Mabee bred Evening Jewel, a daughter of Northern Afleet—Jewel of the Night, by Giant's Causeway.

25 YEARS AGO

Multiple California-bred champion WORK THE CROWD took home two stakes trophies in April 1995. She began the month April 1 with a 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ -length triumph at Bay Meadows in the \$66,200 Brown Bess Breeders' Cup Handicap, named for another talented Cal-bred. Four weeks later her margin was five lengths in the \$121,875 Miss America Handicap (G3T) at Golden Gate Fields. Russell Baze rode Work the Crowd both times for trainer Greg Gilchrist. John Harris and Norma Foster Maddy, the wife of state Sen. Ken Maddy, bred Work the Crowd, a 4-year-old daughter of Political Ambition—Katambara, by Flag Officer, and they raced her in the name of Harris Farms and Amen Stable.

50 YEARS AGO

Imbros not only sired the great California-bred Native Diver, but also Cal-bred Boughs o' Holly, winner of the Santa Ana Handicap at Santa Anita April 6, 1970. Jerry Lambert, who regularly rode Native Diver, piloted Boughs o' Holly in the Santa Ana. They forced the pace from the outside until the stretch, and then Boughs o' Holly drew off to win by 2 $\frac{3}{4}$ lengths, stopping the timer in 1:47 $\frac{1}{8}$ for 1 $\frac{1}{8}$ miles on turf. Cal-bred Luz Del Sol finished second, with Kentucky-bred Gay Year third. L.J. Brooks trained Boughs o' Holly for owner/breeder Mark Clemans Jr. Boughs o' Holly, who also won the 1969 Bel Air Claiming Stakes at Hollywood Park, was out of the Nasrullah mare South Carolina.

Queen Bee to You Retired

California-bred multiple graded winner Queen Bee to You has been retired from racing with a minor right ankle injury.

Bred by Tom and Debi Stull's Tommy Town Thoroughbreds, Queen Bee to You began racing for her breeders. A daughter of Tommy Town stallion Old Topper, she is out of the Touch Gold mare Silk Queen.

Christopher St. Hilaire claimed Queen Bee to You for $50,000 in December 2016, and she raced primarily for St. Hilaire and Adam Vali. Mike Pender initially trained her for the partners, with Andrew Lerner later taking over.

Under Lerner's tutelage, Queen Bee to You won the 2020 La Canada Stakes (G3) and 2019 Bayakoa Stakes (G3), Betty Grable Stakes, and Bertrando Stakes. Altogether, the 6-year-old won eight of 33 races, with 11 seconds and five thirds, for earnings of $658,770.

IN MEMORIAM

ROBERT MANFUSO

The roots of California Cup hark back to a speech Robert (Bob) Manfuso made at the California Thoroughbred Breeders Association annual meeting in 1988. That speech, which discussed the creation of the Maryland Million, prompted valuable dialog among Manfuso and CTBA and Oak Tree Racing Association directors, leading to the institution of the California Cup program.

Manfuso, a stalwart of the Maryland Thoroughbred breeding industry, died March 19 at age 82.

Not only did the Maryland industry mourn his passing, many in the California industry did as well.

Donald Valpredo, the CTBA president at the time of Manfuso's speech to the organization, recalls the first time he encountered Manfuso. Valpredo and John Harris had sent their homebred Soviet Problem to Maryland for the 1994 Laurel Dash Stakes (G3). The good California-bred filly won by 1¼ lengths as the favorite.

Fast forward to 1988 and the annual meeting speech. Manfuso detailed the long process Maryland took to get the Maryland Million off the ground. The series proved an immediate success.

BLOODHORSE LIBRARY

"The history of our state isn't so dissimilar to what I hear happens in California," Manfuso said in his speech. "We had a very difficult time trying to get vital components of our industry on the same page. In Maryland, what happened was an incredible event."

Manfuso then spoke about the process of getting the Maryland Million going. Immediately following the meeting, Valpredo, Manfuso, and several others hunkered down for a discussion. They envisioned something similar for California.

Visits to Maryland followed. Valpredo and Brian Sweeney went in 1988, and John Harris recalls participating in a 1989 delegation along with Valpredo, Jim and Pat Thompson, and others.

"I will always remember Bob's kindness and his total interest in development of our Cal Cup when we toured Maryland," Valpredo said recently.

It was an enlightening trip, not only for the education the Californians received about the Maryland Million but also because Manfuso introduced them to scrapple, what Valpredo calls "a backside staple" in Maryland. Made with pork scraps, cornmeal, flour, and spices, it is formed into a loaf and pan-fried.

At the time of the CTBA speech, Manfuso was the vice chairman and executive vice president of Laurel and Pimlico racetracks. He was also a major owner and breeder in Maryland, most recently operating Chanceland

Farm in West Friendship, Md., with his longtime partner, Katy Voss.

Manfuso came from racing roots. His father, John Manfuso Sr., served as president of the National Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association and the Maryland division of the HBPA.

Bob Manfuso's runners, often owned in partnership with other family members, included Shelter Half, a multiple stakes-winning son of Tentam and an earner of $236,337 in the 1970s. Manfuso bred millionaire Cathryn Sophia, who won the 2016 Longines Kentucky Oaks (G1). With Voss he bred millionaire and multiple graded winner International Star in New York.

Manfuso was named Maryland Breeder of the Year in 2016, the same year that Cathryn Sophia was voted Maryland-bred Horse of the Year.

Manfuso was one of several who put together a partnership in 1986 to buy Laurel and Pimlico. Under their leadership, business grew at the tracks. Manfuso and his brothers sold their interest in the tracks following the death of partner Frank De Francis in 1989.

A member of the Maryland Thoroughbred Horsemen's Association board of directors, Manfuso also previously served as vice president of Breeders' Cup. While he was a major force in the Maryland breeding industry, Californians owe him a debt of gratitude for his role in Cal Cup.

RAY YORK

Ray York, who piloted Determine to victory in the 1954 Kentucky Derby, died Feb. 23 of pneumonia in Bakersfield. He was 86.

A contemporary of Bill Shoemaker and John Longden, York won 3,082 races, including major races on both coasts. Determine's path to the Kentucky Derby came via the Santa Anita Derby, with York aboard, and they also captured the 1955 Charles H. Strub Stakes. Determine went on to sire California-bred Decidedly, who won the 1962 Kentucky Derby.

The recipient of the George Woolf Award in 1955, York rode until 1992 and led riders at Del Mar in 1957, 1962, and 1964. When he came out of retirement to ride Culebra, trained by his friend Henry Moreno, to 10th in a race at Santa Anita in 2000, he became the first jockey to ride in seven decades.

York won the Santa Anita Derby again in 1959 with the filly Silver Spoon. He also captured the 1964 Hollywood Gold Cup on Colorado King. The rider's first Santa Anita stakes victory came on Phil D. in the 1952 San Antonio Handicap.

RICHARD TATE

Trainer Richard Tate, who worked for several California horsemen, including the Schiffer family and trainer Mel Stute, died Feb. 22 in Sheridan, Wyo. He was 69.

Tate trained in Montana, Colorado, and California. His charges included California-bred Summer Sale, bred by the Schiffer family's The Hat Ranch West and campaigned by The Hat Ranch. A 1986 son of Summer Time Guy—General Store, by To Market, Summer Sale captured the 1990 Rich Cream Handicap and 1989 Hollywood Turf Express Handicap, both at Hollywood Park. Summer Sale won six of 25 races and earned $203,275.

Tate also trained Cal-bred Arvada, a 1989 gelding by Jaklin Klugman—Comissa, by Judge, for The Hat Ranch. A winner of five in 28 races and an earner $104,255, Arvada finished second in the 1992 Round Table Handicap at Bay Meadows and in the 1993 Dormello Stakes and Tiburon Handicap, the latter two races at Golden Gate.

Before he took out his training license, Tate worked as a groom for the Schiffers at Galway Downs and for Stute on the Southern California circuit. He also worked for Sidney Watters Jr. and steeplechase trainer Burley Cocks in the East. While with Cocks, he groomed and rode Colonial Cup winner Lucky Boy.

Born in Sheridan, Tate grew up on a ranch on the Wyoming/Montana border, where his father raised polo ponies, jumpers, and racehorses. Richard attended the University of Wyoming before moving to California.

Tate is survived by his longtime partner, Alexandra Oakes; his sister, Mimi; and his twin brother, Hardy.

CTBA working for you

To further assist the membership of the California Thoroughbred Breeders Association (CTBA) and subscribers of its official publication, California Thoroughbred, this monthly editorial page provides readers with updates about the association's current policies, latest news, and upcoming events in the Golden State.

Ag Day Canceled

Because of concerns regarding the coronavirus, the California Agricultural Day was canceled. Originally slated to be held March 18, the day is annually conducted in conjunction with National Agricultural Day and celebrates the importance of agriculture.

The California Thoroughbred Breeders Association regularly staffs a booth at Ag Day at the Capitol in Sacramento.

The booth in the past has featured a mare and foal provided by an area breeder, giving state legislators the opportunity to see the fruits of the California breeding industry up close and personal.

The CTBA will again host a booth when Ag Day resumes in 2021. It is an important way to showcase the industry to lawmakers.

SPOTLIGHTING FOALS OF 2020

With foaling season upon us, now is the time to spotlight your foals in California Thoroughbred. The May through August issues will feature Thoroughbreds foaled in California, with advertorials consisting of six to eight photos of foals per page.

The cost to publish a full-page insertion will be discounted to $500. This represents a savings of more than 50% off the regular full-page advertisement price. Insertions should include a caption with each foal's sire, dam, broodmare sire, sex, date of birth, and breeders, as well as the details, including a logo, of their farm location.

Photos need to be submitted by the following deadlines: April 6 (May issue), May 4 (June issue), June 1 (July issue), and July 6 (August issue).

For additional information please contact the magazine's Advertising Manager, Loretta Veiga, at Loretta@ctba.com or at 626-445-7800, ext. 227. Additionally, photos can be submitted to Ken Gurnick at kgurnick@ctba.com for free inclusion on the CTBA's website.

Robinson Donation Adds to Burke's History

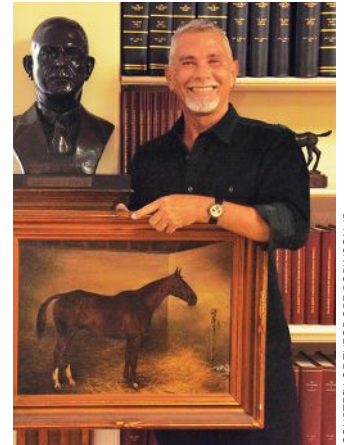

A phone call to the Carleton F. Burke Memorial Library started with "I'm the step-great-grandson of Carleton F. Burke. I have some of his artifacts. Would you like to have them?" When librarian Vivian Montoya relayed this to Foundation president Ada Gates Patton, Patton's reply was, "ABSOLUTELY!"

Recently, Patton went to Palm Springs, where Theodore (Theo) D. Robinson Jr. resides, to pick up the donation of a silver platter and silver coffee pot with carved wooden handle, won by Burke; an oil painting of Burke's favorite polo pony, Scotty, by the noted artist Franklin Voss; and an ink-well hoof with engraved silver. There she learned some family history.

Carleton F. Burke married late and had no children. But his wife, Myrtle Wood Hook, had lots of illustrious family. Her grandson, Theodore Douglas Robinson, is a descendant of the Astors, a governor of New York, and three U. S. Presidents: James Monroe, Theodore Roosevelt, and Franklin D. Roosevelt. Theo Jr. is her great-grandson and is a noted photographer and artist who divides his time between Palm Springs and the south of France.

Burke was born in Arkansas and moved with his family to Los Angeles, where his father prospered as a real estate and insurance entrepreneur. Carleton Burke also excelled in business, but his deep love was horses. He played polo, owned racehorses and a breeding farm, and served the polo and racing industry for decades.

In the period from the early 1930s to his death on July 29, 1962, Burke was the first chairman of the California Horse Racing Board, director of racing at Santa Anita, a founder of the California Thoroughbred Breeders Association, a trustee of the National Museum of Racing in Saratoga Springs, N.Y., chairman of the American Polo Association, a trustee of the American Thoroughbred Breeders Association, and donor of the Carleton F. Burke Library at the CTBA building in Arcadia, the largest collection of the history of racing in California.

Preparing young horses mentally is as important as getting them physically fit

Mental Preparation

A LITTLE HORSE SENSE GOES A LONG WAY

BY EMILY SHIELDS

The same scene plays out every day around the world: A van arrives at the racetrack, and fresh-faced 2-year-olds are unloaded. Whether it is March or November, the first week in their new life is paramount for a young horse. They are clean slates full of promise, and what unfolds over the next few days can set the tone for their entire careers.

“That first week is terribly important,” said trainer Gary Mandella. “It’s something we take very seriously.”

Getting a young horse ready for racing goes beyond fitness. Their mental health is just as important as their soundness because one bad experience can end a promising career. But how do trainers, both on the track and on the farm, work to ensure a positive experience for their burgeoning racehorses?

FARM FIRST

At Blue Diamond Horseshoe in Aguanga, newborn foals get experience almost immediately.

“From the time they are born, we take them on walks with their dams,” said manager Renee Beckwith. “When they are weaned, we put them on the Eurociser so that they learn how to go forward.

They are turned out together so that they learn about groups. And they are exposed to stuff like dirt bikes, garbage trucks, and tractors.”

Ellen Jackson, who trains out of her Victory Rose Thoroughbreds in Vacaville, said she has a “standard plan” for bringing along a new crop of horses.

“We bring them in at 18 months and put 30 days in them,” she said. “That will include ground breaking, saddling, using the hotwalker, having a rider, and standing tied. Only a week of that 30 days is actual riding. Then we turn them out, while they are still green. I find that usually around that time they have a big growth spurt.”

Giving the yearlings more time to develop physically is an important step in the process.

“They put so much energy into trying to train that they stop being able to remodel their bones,” Jackson said. “But I also think that first stimulation can be the best thing in the world because it fills in weak spots where they need more calcium in the bone.”

Occasionally, a horse is just ready.

“Sometimes you have a 2-year-old who is into everything,” Beckwith said. “She might be beating up her friends, running up and down the field, and biting everyone. That’s when you say, ‘Okay, you’re ready.’ With a horse that is intelligent, you have to keep their brain busy or they’ll get into trouble.”

Horse trainer Steve Charles starts his horses in the round pen.

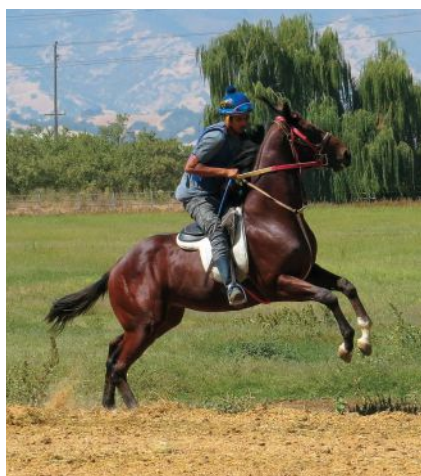

“We do things more traditionally,” he said. “We still ground-drive everything, teaching how to turn left, right, and do figure eights. When someone does get on them, they already know a little bit about what is going on. Some of them fall right in (to round pen work), but a lot of the time we have someone else there to encourage them to go forward.”

Once the horses are handling well and accepting of a rider, it is time to head to the training track, where companionship is key.

“We ride them around the ranch first, then take them to the track in pairs,” Charles said. “Sets of three are even better because you can get them used to being inside, outside, in the middle, behind horses, or leading. If you take them by themselves, you can have problems.”

“We gallop them in company as much as possible,” said Tommy Town Thoroughbreds’ manager Mike Allen. “I do use a pony a lot when they first start going to the track. When we have three or four riders available, we gallop in larger groups and have them change positions, pass horses, things like that that you would find in a race.”

Any mental stress becomes quickly apparent.

Having good riders is one of the most important factors in breaking young horses

COURTESY OF VICTORY ROSE THOROUGHBREDS

“Every year we have a couple that spook at things like the track rail,” said Allen. “Those are the ones we take with a pony a couple of times to get them over it and show them it’s fine.”

The Blue Diamond horses go to Galway Downs to train, which can be busy beyond the regular horse traffic.

“They get exposed to helicopters, golf carts, dogs, peacocks, and kids,” Beckwith said. “One weekend there was a carnival with a Ferris wheel right by the barn. Soccer balls get kicked onto the track from the infield. They mentally get exposed to a ton of stuff; there is nothing that should surprise them when they leave us.”

Charles would prefer that a horse have a full 90 days in training before heading to a real track like Santa Anita Park or Golden Gate Fields.

“In the old days you had them for 90, but that doesn’t happen as much anymore,” he said. “The owners see them galloping in sets at 45 days and think they are ready for the racetrack, but they’re not. They need a lot of repetition to figure out that this is their job now. There are a lot of things on the racetrack you can’t simulate on the farm and might make them spook, which isn’t fair to the other horses on the track with them.”

“Having a really good rider is the number one most important thing,” Jackson said.

Allen agreed, saying, “I change riders around a lot. It could be that a horse needs to learn to switch leads, and one rider can do that better. Or a tough horse with one guy might end up quieter with another rider. You want a rider to get along with the horse.”

Producing a quiet horse accepting of any rider is a boon when a horse heads to the track.

RACETRACK TIME

When the horses are physically ready for the track, they ship out. But what happens next is dependent on many factors, according to Mandella.

“It depends on how they came,” he said. “Were they on a van for 36 hours straight before they arrived? Or did they take a very easy four-hour flight and arrive in the cool of the night and have 12 hours to rest before the morning? Or did they come at 2 in the morning and the track opens at 5? It’s not so simple.”

The son of Hall of Fame trainer Richard Mandella, Gary has seen countless young horses pass through his and his father’s barns.

“In general, the best course is to carefully take them to the track the next day after they arrive,” he said, “The thing to remember is the more time you give them off before their first day on the track, the fresher they are and the more likely they are to make a mistake.”

Circumstances may prevent that move. “Some people send us 2-year-olds that galloped that morning, loaded on a plane at noon, arrived in California at 6 p.m., then they recover overnight and go gallop

When young horses are taken to the training track, companionship with other horses is key, whether it's learning the ins and outs of the starting gate or galloping in company the next day," Mandella said. "Other people know the horse is leaving, so to make sure he looks good, they don't train him the last two days. Then they ride a van for two days, and by the time they get here they've had four or five days off. That's where you might have to use a tranquilizer."

Some horses find the journey itself very stressful.

"Some get upset and get 'fake' temperatures," Mandella said. "Their temperature will get above 101, and you have to wonder if you should call their bluff on it. You get some snotty noses when they arrive. There are so many things to look at, and while some guys are more thorough than others and you learn every detail (from them), others might send the horse and say, 'He breezed once a week,' and that's really all you know about the horse."

It all boils down to giving a young horse good experiences, despite the complete change from the farm to the track.

"You have to be very careful to make sure their first few days go the proper way because bad habits get ingrained very quickly," Mandella said. "The earlier in their training that something happens, the deeper that goes. That first week is really important, something Dad takes very seriously and therefore I follow suit."

He echoed the sentiment that using a buddy system is preferred.

"You're in a much better position if you get more than one 2-year-old at a time. Nothing is harder than someone sending the first one by himself, with no company to go with. The best thing you can do is send them out there in twosomes because that's what they are used to at the farm. It helps them see all this for the first time. There's a lot of moving parts at the track. Even the biggest operations in Ocala don't have all the backstretch activity that goes on here, with all the other people's horses they might encounter."

There's a fine balance between pushing a horse for fitness and exhausting it mentally.

“The ones who are good-minded have a big advantage because they are the ones who won't hurt themselves.”

— Mike Allen

"A lot depends on where they are coming in from," trainer Leonard Powell said. "If they've been exposed to other horses on a track from a training center, you can go a bit faster with them. If you go too slow, then they can get fresh, and that's when they could get hurt."

"The ones who are good-minded have a big advantage because they are the ones who won't hurt themselves," Allen said. "The ones who are spooky or might dump a rider are the ones who could have a lot of ability, but they could get hurt before they ever have a chance to show it. Tough horses to handle on the ground might actually be the smart ones, who would never jump a rail. Those end up being better than the horses who are flighty and might hurt themselves or another person."

Mandella and Jackson both offered a warning about the phenomenon of a young horse seeing a fellow horse coming toward them, such as when they are galloping to the left and joggers are coming from the right.

"An underrated obstacle is traffic coming toward them," Mandella said. "Your first instinct is to take them to the training track to start because it's quieter, but it's so narrow and a lot of these babies have never seen horses coming toward them while they are galloping. You can really blow their mind, and it will take you two years to get them over one bad day if it's within the first five days they've been here."

"Think about it," Jackson said. "In a herd situation, you never see another horse running toward you. It's instilled in them not to run into each other, so this can really challenge some horses. The first time we have them pass each other, we do it with a pony because you never want to start with two babies passing on the track. To me, working on this is critical."

Two-time Kentucky Derby-winning trainer Doug O'Neill said, "I prefer them not to get too fit on the farm before they come in because then they are so high energy and ready to compete, but the mind isn't there. I like to do the mental finishing before finishing off the fitness."

"Horses are mirrors of us, so if we give them confidence, love, and compassion, they'll do the same for us. The best thing is when you finally see the aha moment, and they understand how it all works." CTB

Nick Alexander homebred Lieutenant Dan takes the Sensational Star for his third stakes win

Alexander was winning the Sensational Star as an owner and breeder for the third time in a row, Lieutenant Dan following Tough Sunday in 2018 and Pee Wee Reese in 2019.

The win was the fifth for Lieutenant Dan, who has finished in the top three spots 11 times in 12 starts for earnings of $406,020. Steven Miyadi conditions the 4-year-old gelding, who last year won the $200,702 Echo Eddie Stakes on the dirt after winning an allowance optional claimer on synthetic at Golden Gate Fields. The Sensational Star was Lieutenant Dan's third stakes win. He also took the $147,000 Real Good Deal Stakes at Del Mar last July.

"He has won on dirt, turf, synthetic, and an off track," Alexander said. "You can't ask for much more than that."

Because of continuous rains, Alexander actually suspected the Sensational Star would come off the grass. But it stayed on the turf, which was listed as firm.

"I thought his chances would be better on dirt," he said, "but Dan adapted perfectly."

Alexander still owns the four-time winning dam, Excusabull, who has produced eight winners from eight to race. Although consistent, none of her foals were world-beaters.

"She hadn't produced a lot before Dan," Alexander said. "We always try to sort out sending half to Northern California and half to Southern California, predicting our A-team and our B-team. He went to Steve up north, but after a few weeks Steve called me and said, 'This horse deserves to be down south.'"

After foaling Gray Lives Matter in 2017, Excusabull developed a uterine hematoma that took over two years to dissipate. She is back in foal to Grazen for 2021. Alexander will have to wait several years to see that foal on the track, but until then he has Lieutenant Dan to enjoy.

"He's such a cool horse," the owner said. "We all get excited when we get a horse like this." CTB

MILITARY PRECISION

LIEUTENANT DAN SALUTES SENSATIONAL STAR

BY EMILY SHIELDS

Due to the state-wide restrictions in place owing to the COVID-19 pandemic, owners must stay away from Santa Anita. That experience proved strange for Nick Alexander, who watched the $102,500 Sensational Star Stakes for California-breds March 22 from the comfort of his couch. He had two homebreds in the race—favored Just Grazed Me and the subsequent winner, Lieutenant Dan.

"I watched it on TVG," Alexander said. "You don't do that very often because you're usually at the track."

He noted that three of the commentators selected Just Grazed Me as their top choice, but the classy filly never looked truly comfortable and finished fourth.

"When they all picked her, I thought that set it up pretty well for Dan because no one was mentioning him," Alexander joked.

Lieutenant Dan, a son of Grazen—Excusabull, by Indian Charlie, found a perfect spot behind front-runners Stealthediamonds and Grinning Tiger. Jockey Drayden Van Dyke urged him three wide into the stretch, where Lieutenant Dan mowed down Stealthediamonds to score by three-quarters of a length. Brandothebartender finished third in the 10-horse field. The final time for the 5½-furlong turf race was 1:02.32.

"It took a lot longer to catch (Stealthediamonds) than we hoped," Alexander said. "Dan had to really work to catch her, and he did. He was really trying; he was not going to fail."

FASHION STREAK

FASHIONABLY FAST WINS TIZNOW IN STYLE

BY TRACY GANTZ

John Harris recalls buying Fall Fashion, the dam of California-bred Fashionably Fast, primarily because she was in foal to Twirling Candy, a sire he liked. But Harris didn't ignore the stakes-winning mare's family.

"She's by Forestry," Harris said in the winner's circle after Fashionably Fast won the $100,000 Tiznow Stakes at Santa Anita March 1. "It's the same family as some real good horses like Nureyev. It's about the third or fourth dam down, but it's there."

Special, the fourth dam of Fashionably Fast, produced French champion and top sire Nureyev, as well as the dam of another French champion and good sire, Sadler's Wells. The third dam, Number, was a multiple graded winner in this country and producer of several graded winners.

In the name of his Harris Farms, Harris paid just $22,000 for Fall Fashion, then 12, at the 2013 Keeneland November sale. Fall Fashion's Twirling Candy foal, a 2014 gelding named Fall Harvest, didn't live up to Harris' expectations, winning twice in 12 starts for earnings of $15,265. But considering what the mare produced next, Harris found a bargain.

Bred to Lucky Pulpit, Fall Fashion produced Fashionably Fast in 2015. Throat surgery turned Fashionably Fast's previously respectable career into an astounding one. Following that procedure, Fall

Fashionably Fast struts his stuff in the Tiznow at Santa Anita, his sixth consecutive victory

Fashion warmed up with a fifth and a second in allowance optional claiming company and has since been unstoppable.

Dean Pederson trains Fashionably Fast for Harris and co-owners Per Antonsen and John Nicoletti. Tiago Pereira rode the gelding in the Tiznow, as he has in all six races of Fashionably Fast's current victory streak, which includes four consecutive stakes.

The first five wins ranged from six to seven furlongs, and Fashionably Fast had to stretch out to a mile in the Tiznow. Pederson and Pereira worked hard in the mornings to get Fashionably Fast to relax, and their efforts have paid off.

As the 6-5 Tiznow favorite, Fashionably Fast battled for the lead with Tiger Dad through the early going, but he did it easily.

"His last couple of works, Tiago has worked hard on getting him to relax in the first part but still finish," said Pederson. "To me that was the key of the race today. If he relaxed, he gave himself a chance."

Oliver ranged up in the stretch to challenge Fashionably Fast, who gamely withstood that effort to score by a half-length in 1:36.64. Oliver held second by 2¼ lengths over Tiger Dad.

The question immediately arose as to whether Fashionably Fast's streak was the longest of any Harris Farms runner.

"That sent me back to the memory bank to recall if this is our longest win streak," Harris said via email the following day. "Actually, that title belongs to a gelding we were racing back in 1992—Barry Chancy. He won eight in a row, albeit he was competing in less-contentious races than Fashionably Fast."

But Fashionably Fast isn't done, and he might very well overtake Barry Chancy for that honor later this year. CTB

REMEMBERING FRIENDS

WARD 'N JERRY WINS GRADE 3 SAN LUIS REY

BY TRACY GANTZ

Ward 'n Jerry's name pays tribute to two of Larry Williams' close friends who passed away in recent years. Thus, when the California-bred gelding became a graded stakes winner in the $101,000 San Luis Rey Stakes (G3T) at Santa Anita March 21, it was even more meaningful.

"Larry Williams is in the lumber business," said Dan Kiser, manager of Larry and Marianne Williams' Tree Top Ranches in Parma, Idaho. "Jerry Bower was kind of Larry's mentor in the lumber business. He died a couple of years ago, well into his 90s. The other one was an old gentleman named Ward Williamson, a dear friend of Larry's."

When it came time to name Ward 'n Jerry, a 2013 son of Lucky Pulpit—Tamarack Bay, by Dehere, Williams decided to honor his friends, choosing a foal of superb breeding. The Williamses stood Lucky Pulpit, for many years a leading California sire prior to his death in 2017. Tamarack Bay has produced grade 1 winner and Cal-bred champion Tamarando and stakes winners U'Narack and Luckarack.

Mike Puype trains Ward 'n Jerry, who began his racing career at 2 in 2015 and moved his way up through his conditions. In his first stakes attempt, the 2017 California Cup Turf Classic Stakes presented by City National Bank, Ward 'n Jerry finished third to two top Cal-breds, Ashleylvussugar and What a View. Ward 'n Jerry became graded stakes-placed when third in the 2019 Hollywood Turf Cup Stakes (G2T), losing by just a neck and a head.

As much success as the Williamses have had, Kiser noted that the San Luis Rey was only their second graded win. Tamarando won the 2013 Del Mar Futurity (G1) and 2014 El Camino Real Derby (G3).

Ward 'n Jerry faced Ashleylvussugar again in the San Luis Rey and five other rivals. Favoritism went to Oscar Dominguez, last year's Hollywood Turf Cup winner.

Third during the first part of the 1½-mile San Luis Rey over a course labeled "good," Ward 'n Jerry waited until the final turn under jockey Flavien Prat to challenge for the lead. When Prat asked him, Ward 'n Jerry responded and defeated fellow Cal-bred Camino Del Paraiso by 1¼ lengths in 2:28.67. Oscar Dominguez finished third.

"I thought Flavien did a wonderful job of settling him down

Cal-bred Ward 'n Jerry make his first stakes victory a graded one, the San Luis Rey Stakes at Santa Anita without fighting him," said Kiser. "He had him in a great position the whole race."

Puype had told Prat that Ward 'n Jerry would like the longer distance of the San Luis Rey.

"He had won at a mile and a quarter and a mile and three eighths," said Puype, "and he was a really good third going a mile and a half last December (in the Turf Cup)."

The gelding certainly enhanced Tamarack Bay's reputation as a broodmare. Kiser said that the mare has 2-year-old and yearling colts by Tapit. Puype will train the 2-year-old, named Rackataptap.

Just a couple of days after the San Luis Rey, Kiser hauled Tamarack Bay to John Harris' Harris Farms so that she could foal a Cal-bred by California Chrome. She is scheduled to be bred back to Rousing Sermon, a stallion the Williamses stand at Harris. Both California Chrome and Rousing Sermon are by Lucky Pulpit. CTB

PROFILE

K. B. SAREEN

BY EMILY SHIELDS

Kulbhushan Sareen—known to all as K. B.—never would have guessed he would end up breeding horses. In fact, his route to California from his boyhood in Calcutta was so circuitous that it's a surprise he is in the sport at all. But through all of his global travels, a love of horse racing has endured.

"It was destiny," Sareen said.

After his father passed away when he was an infant, Sareen grew up in a poor family led by a single mother with five children.

"My childhood wasn't very pleasant," Sareen admitted, "and I never had any money on me."

But he became good at scraping together 40 rupees to take to the Royal Calcutta Turf Club on Saturdays, earning enough back with his wagering selections to buy a week of room and board.

"I was pretty lucky," he said.

He eventually made enough to go to university, achieving a bachelor's degree in four years. He still used his racetrack winnings to "pay for my entertainment and to take girls out to dinner."

But a degree couldn't secure him a job in India. Sareen went to Iran to work for Toshiba International, but was thrown out in 1979 by the Islamic Republic as it removed foreigners from the country.

"Instead of going home to India, I bought a one-way ticket to America," he said.

In December 1980, Sareen arrived in America on a tourist visa and was "determined to make it." He started by washing dishes in Los Angeles, then moved up through the ranks to busboy, waiter, and bartender. He couldn't believe his fortune, making $300 in tips in a single night.

"I thought this was the ultimate, but it wasn't why I came to America," he said. "I became an insurance salesman and made my own success."

Sareen became friends with Selwyn Touber, who owned a Thoroughbred mare with little value.

"I asked him why he didn't just breed her," Sareen said. "We became partners."

The winning True Knight mare, Never Bend True, produced an Expressman filly for them in 1991. That became Noori, who broke her maiden in her debut by 6½ lengths for the partners and trainer Dan Hendricks. She ultimately won four of 25 starts and earned $27,334.

From there Sareen dabbled in the game.

"I would buy this or that, but nothing was very serious," he said.

Enter Om. By Munnings out of the Tabasco Cat mare Rare Cat, Om was a $125,000 purchase at the 2014 Barretts March select 2-year-old sale. The notoriously hot-tempered colt broke his maiden by 7¼ lengths in his second start at odds of 22-1, handing 2015 Triple Crown winner American Pharoah what would be the first of only two defeats.

Om went on to be a multiple graded stakes winner of $1,355,082 and ran second in the Breeders' Cup twice.

Om was best in the summer and fall of 2015, winning the $250,000 Del Mar Derby (G2T) at Del Mar and the $200,750 Twilight Derby (G2T) at Santa Anita. Those memories are still clear to Sareen, whose son, United States Major Taj Sareen, brought his whole squadron into the winner's circle for the Del Mar Derby.

"It was a lot of fun," Sareen said. "The whole family was there, and the whole squadron."

But Sareen's personal life took a turn when his son was killed in an F-18 crash near London while deployed for the third time. He was 34. Just three days later Om won the Twilight Derby.

"My son had asked me to give him Om," Sareen said. "I had done it orally, but we hadn't done any transfers yet when he was deployed. He was a family favorite, so I could never sell him or give him away to anyone."

Om ran second by a nose in the $920,000 Breeders' Cup Turf Sprint (G1T) in 2016. He also finished second in the same race last year after being transferred from the Hendricks barn to that of trainer Peter Miller. Om retired with seven wins, seven seconds, and six thirds in 32 starts. He now stands stud at Harris Farms in Coalinga.

Sareen is planning on supporting Om with three current broodmares and one mare on the track. He has an Uncle Mo mare named Savera being bred to him this spring, and his Bernstein mare Nice Meidel is currently at Lane's End Farm in Kentucky with a Liam's Map colt, after producing a Bayern colt last year. She will return to California to visit Om next season. Sareen claimed the winning Stormy Atlantic mare Classy Atlantic out of a Feb. 28 race at Santa Anita solely because she nicks well with Om.

"I'll continue to race her this year, then send her to Om when she retires," Sareen said.

Sareen joked that his wife has put a stop on him adding more horses to the band—"I'm 77 and if something happened to me, she wouldn't be able to handle it." But he does have two horses currently on the track. One of them is four-time winner Major Cabbie, named after his beloved son.

The $260,000 juvenile purchase broke his maiden in his second start in 2017, and went on to add three allowance optional claiming races. He was fifth in the $600,000 Clark Stakes (G1) at Churchill Downs in November, and has been working at Oaklawn Park for his return to the races. The other runner is two-time winner Grand Meister, a son of Bodemeister who was last seen winning at Turfway Park in December.

"I've gone deeper into it than I ever thought I would like to," Sareen said, "but it's been exciting."

And with Om's first foals slated to be born in 2021, it can only get more exhilarating. CTB

STRESS OF ULCERS

A PROPER DIET AND FEEDING STRATEGY CAN EASE THE
ULCER PROBLEM

BY HEATHER SMITH THOMAS

Many racehorses develop ulcers, partly due to stresses of environment (confinement), strenuous exercise and competition, diet, etc. Early studies reported in the Equine Veterinary Journal in 1989 and 1996 by Dr. Michael J. Murray and his associates stated that gastric ulcers affect up to 93% of racehorses, about 60% of horses in other performance careers, and up to 59% of foals—particularly foals raised in confinement. Strategic changes in feeding management can help minimize incidence and severity of ulcers, however, and reduce the need for expensive ulcer medications.

Strategic changes in feeding management can help minimize the incidence and severity of ulcers

CARISA WICKENS

Dr. Stephen Duren of Performance Horse Nutrition says that in earlier years horsemen generally thought only in terms of gastric (stomach) ulcers, but we now realize there can be colonic ulcers as well. Studies at the University of Tennessee and the University of Kentucky used ponies with cannulas (openings into the digestive tract) that enabled researchers to sample material in the stomach and colon and readily measure some of the changes that can lead to ulcers.

“The initial thrust of early ulcer research was to find drug therapies and acid blockers that would help with treatment,” said Duren. “But along with the medical side, we also have to be conscious of what we should do from a feeding standpoint to reduce or help heal the condition or prevent ulcers in the first place.

“Ulcers in racehorses generally occur for two reasons. First, we change their diet. As the horse goes from a pasture situation or relatively sedentary animal to a more active and athletic horse, his diet has to change in order to provide the needed energy to do the things we ask of him. He can’t get enough calories for the increased work just by eating pasture grass or forages. These feeds are inadequate to fuel his energy requirements as an athlete. So we feed a different diet.”

These diets are usually more calorie dense than a horse can consume quickly and not have to spend all his time at pasture.

“The reason this change in diet may cause or exacerbate ulceration is because the main buffer for acid in the stomach is saliva,” said Duren. “A horse produces about twice as much saliva when eating hay or grass than when eating grain. The very nature of the new diet takes away some of the protection in the stomach.”

Horses in a pasture environment graze almost continuously, so they are producing saliva almost continuously.

“Acid in the horse’s stomach is produced on a continuous basis (as opposed to humans, where stomach acid is generally produced only in response to a meal),” said Duren. “Acid production in the horse doesn’t stop. So the constant

Studies show that alfalfa hay seems to be more efficient in buffering against stomach ulcers than grass hay because of its higher levels of calcium and protein eating is a help to prevent ulcers.”

Racehorses are usually fed large grain meals and allowed to pick at a little hay in between. They are not engaged in steady feeding behavior like a horse at pasture.

“Even though they may have hay in front of them, they may be resting or not interested in eating the hay,” said Duren. “Thoroughbred trainers don’t withhold hay, but the horse may not be eating very much of it.

“There is actually more feed withheld in other types of performance horses that are not working quite as hard because the trainer is trying to control their weight. There is significant incidence of ulcers in non-racing performance horses because the horses are in stalls and have no pasture turnout. Access to pasture may not fit into the management or schedule of performance horses or racehorses.

“Large grain meals may be fermented in the digestive tract and create more acid, and there are certain bacteria in the stomach that produce acids that further drive this acidity. Diet is definitely involved in ulcers.”

The other major cause of ulcers is exercise. The horse’s stomach lining contains glandular tissue (mucus-producing glands) that help protect against the effects of stomach acid; mucus coats the stomach lining. But the top part of the stomach is not as well protected. There are fewer glands in the lining in that portion of the stomach.

“When the horse exercises, the diaphragm and movement of internal organs compress the stomach, and push acid from the buffered area up into the non-buffered area,” said Duren. “This is what causes some of the ulceration in the top portion of the stomach. The compression of the stomach during strenuous exercise moves more of the stomach contents—and acid—into that unprotected region.

“Diet and exercise can both precipitate ulcers, and it’s no wonder that these horses have ulcers.”

DIET STRATEGY

“The first thought people had regarding diet management was to try to mimic pasture, and feed grass hay,” said Duren. “We thought that if horses had access to grass hay, they would be chewing it for a longer time than chewing a grain meal and be able to buffer ulcers with the additional saliva.

“But researchers at the University of Tennessee, University of Kentucky, and Texas A&M discovered that alfalfa hay was more efficient in buffering against stomach ulcers than grass hay because of the higher levels of calcium and protein in alfalfa. The protein and the calcium both act as potential buffer for the stomach acid. So now many Thoroughbred race trainers feed a small amount of alfalfa in the morning, to have it already in the stomach when these horses go out and exercise.”

Grain can potentially be fermented in the hindgut. So you don't want to give horses a big grain meal that can't be fully digested in the stomach, with some of it moving on into the hindgut and perhaps causing problems. Horsemen are now feeding more non-grain energy sources, such as fat.

“Fat slows the rate at which the stomach empties, and this keeps more material in the stomach longer,” said Duren. “Fat is also a great energy source. Another grain substitute is beet pulp, which is a fibrous feed. The horse doesn't particularly have to chew it more, but it's not fermented in the stomach. This energy source gets fermented in the hindgut and produces calories for the horse.”

“Many commercial feeds now include a significant amount of high-energy ingredients like beet pulp and other highly fermentable fiber sources that have a higher calorie content than hay, yet contain more fiber. They have a calorie level similar to oats, but without some of the drawbacks of the grain or carbohydrate load.

“We also have some different calcium sources today that work a lot better than what we used in the past. Calcium is a good acid buffer, so it's often added to the diet in various forms in addition to alfalfa. We have better sources available now—such as marine-based calcium—that we can add to horse feeds. This is a more porous form of calcium, and because it is porous, it has more surface area for binding, and thus an increased buffering capacity. We learned this from research in ruminant animals, especially feedlot and dairy cattle, which are typically on a high-grain diet.”

The first calcium sources added to cattle diets to keep them from becoming acidotic when eating that much grain were not as effective as hoped.

“When we started changing the calcium source and adding a rumen buffer, we had better luck, and we've now done this with horse feeds,” said Duren. “Today there are horse feeds and supplements that contain good sources of calcium, and some of these supplements can be given before exercise to provide the potential buffer.”

MANAGEMENT STRATEGIES

There are many good strategies to help prevent ulcers. But some—like more turnout time and grazing—are hard to fit into the life of a racehorse.

“Many of those horses never have that option,” Duren said.

If you can give a horse the opportunity to graze, this helps, along with changing the feed.

“More small meals can be beneficial, rather than a large, single concentrate meal or even a grain meal morning and evening,” said Duren. “Horses with ulcers are typically fed a minimum of three and sometimes four times a day to reduce the volume of grain that has to be in the stomach at any one time. Keeping hay in front of the horse all the time is also a good plan, along with feeding alfalfa at certain times of day and using a concentrate that is fortified with other energy sources (like beet pulp) besides the sugars.”

“Drug therapies for a horse that has ulcers do work. They have been highly effective, but are also very expensive.”

Good feeding management, without the medication, can go a long way toward reducing risk for ulcers or helping heal them.

“The problem we still see, however, is that some people don't worry enough about management until they have to deal with ulcers,” said Duren. “I always advise my clients to get ahead of this. If you have a racehorse, it's not a matter of if he will get an ulcer, but when. The day this horse comes in from pasture, into a stall, and begins a training program, we need to start feeding in a proactive way—using a supplement that acts as an antacid, or feeding alfalfa just prior to exercise, etc.”

“In most training situations, with horses in stalls, there is barn help available through the day. It's not that hard to have someone give the horses three or four small meals a day and also keep hay in front of these horses.”

“In Australia, many people train racehorses out of a paddock, which is unheard of in the U.S. because we generally don't have those kinds of resources right next to training tracks. In Australia, however, if someone has a young racehorse or two that's prone to ulcers, they might put those horses out in a green paddock. The horses would still be given free-choice hay and be fed grain, but the grain meals will be four times a day and they will be trained out of a paddock rather than stalls. Green grass stimulates their appetite, and they graze adequately—and keep food in the stomach at all times.

“Ulcer problems only become significant when we don't explore all the treatment and management options. There are many things we can do, but we have to get ahead of it. It's not wise to wait until the horse is losing weight, showing poor performance at the track, and has grade 3 or grade 4 ulcers. You need to anticipate possible problems and be proactive.

“It's no different than any other kind of feeding strategy. You don't wait until the weather gets really cold before increasing the feed. If next week it's supposed to get cold, you start feeding a little extra hay now, and it's not so hard on them. Feeding proactively to prevent ulcers is the same strategy.”

Because of the prevalence of ulcers in racehorses, we know they can easily become a problem.

“With the ability of veterinary professionals to treat ulcers, in the absence of an affirmative diagnosis—and the fact that not everyone has a 3-meter scope to check for gastric ulcers—often people simply assume that the horse has an ulcer just from the clinical signs and treat for ulcers,” said Duren. “By the same token, horsemen and trainers can assume that a horse will or does have ulcers and manage that horse accordingly from day one.”

Since ulcers are such a widespread problem, Duren feels it's imperative for preventive management to become widespread as well. Feeding and managing horses to prevent ulcers is not going to hurt and will probably help.

“If proactive management can save some horses from being on an expensive course of omeprazole, it will be a lot cheaper—and healthier for the horses,” said Duren. CTB

Keeping hay in front of a horse at all times is also a good plan to help prevent ulcers

The statistics shown here are compiled by The Jockey Club Information Systems (TJClS). While every effort is made to prevent errors and omissions, California Thoroughbred cannot guarantee their complete and total accuracy. A dagger (†) indicates a stallion that has been pensioned or has died, a dot (•) that he is now standing elsewhere (sires no longer standing in California remain on these lists until their last Cal-bred crop turns 3 years old). Freshman sires are highlighted in bold text. Earnings are from Northern Hemisphere racing and include adjusted money from Japan, Hong Kong, and Singapore. Adjusted earnings are put on par with average North American earnings from the previous year. The average North American purse in 2018 was $23,755 or 50% of the average purse in Japan. To put earnings on par, Japanese earnings are multiplied by 50% before being applied to the total earnings above. Hong Kong earnings are adjusted by 15%, and Singapore adjusted by 66%. Stakes winners and wins follow TJClS stakes rules. Racing statistics through March 22, 2020.

These statistics are for active California-based sires with a minimum of 50 foals of racing age, ranked here by their lifetime Average Earnings Index (AEI). The statistics shown here are compiled by The Jockey Club Information Systems (TJCS). While every effort is made to prevent errors and omissions, California Thoroughbred cannot guarantee their complete and total accuracy. A dagger (†) indicates a stallion that has been pensioned or has died, a dot (•) that he is now standing elsewhere (sires no longer standing in California remain on these lists until their last Cal-bred crop turns 3 years old). Freshman sires are highlighted in bold text. Statistics cover racing in North America (U.S., Canada and Puerto Rico), England, France, Germany, Hong Kong, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Mexico, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates (UAE) only. Stakes winners and wins follow TJCS stakes rules. Percentages are based upon number of named foals of racing age.

COVID-19: MAINTAINING BREEDING SHED ACTIVITY

The challenges of the global COVID-19 pandemic have led to new protocols for Thoroughbred breeding to minimize risk of infection among farm staff and related personnel charged with transporting and handling horses.

The Jockey Club recommends that all North American, Central American, and Caribbean Thoroughbred stud farm operations at a minimum follow guidelines from the Kentucky Department of Ag Guidelines for COVID-19: Breeding Shed Activity issued by E.S. “Rusty” Ford from the Office of the State Veterinarian, Kentucky Department of Agriculture.

With vans and individuals visiting multiple facilities each day during the breeding season, it is important to adopt standard practices in how people and horses visiting sheds are managed. The essential elements enumerated in the guidelines are reproduced with permission from the Kentucky Department of Agriculture:

KENTUCKY DEPARTMENT OF AG GUIDELINES FOR COVID-19: BREEDING SHED ACTIVITY

BREEDING SHED ACTIVITY: With vans and individuals visiting multiple facilities each day we do recommend adopting standard practices in how we manage people and horses visiting sheds.

1. Submission of documentation for mares booked to be bred would best be done electronically. We’ve seen numerous reports where handled paper can be contaminated.
2. Eliminate outside individuals (van drivers and mare attendants) from coming into the prep area and shed. To accomplish this, the van would arrive, the mare would be offloaded and handed off to a shed employee (using the shed’s shank) who would handle the mare through the process. The van driver and anyone accompanying the mare to the shed should remain outside in the parking area while maintaining social distance with other individuals.
3. After cover, the mare would be returned to the loading area and handed off to the attendant for loading onto the van. If there is need for a mare’s attendant to witness the cover, this should be accomplished from outside – looking in, videotaped or virtually.

4. The shank would be cleaned before returning to the shed or reuse and attendant would wash hands [recommended addition by The Jockey Club: or preferably disinfected with acceptable products efficacious in preventing the spread of viral or bacterial agents and the use of disposable gloves by attendants are recommended where practicable].

5. Breeding equipment (leg straps, collars, boots etc.) would be cleaned before reuse [recommended addition by The Jockey Club: or preferably disinfected with acceptable products efficacious in preventing the spread of viral or bacterial agents and the use of disposable gloves by attendants are recommended where practicable].

6. Additionally, maintaining enhanced biosecurity in our daily activity is essential to all of these mitigations.

Implementing these practices, and any other action you can take to eliminate people from congregating in common areas will be beneficial and could be critical in our ability to continue transporting horses to/from sheds.

For information on COVID-19 in the United States, please visit the Center for Disease Control.
